Lecture: Wealth Mindset

The whole world and all its treasures and the sea, air and earth were here when you were born.

Begin to think of the untold and undiscovered riches all around you, waiting for the intelligence of man to bring them forth.

Look upon wealth as the air you breathe; get that attitude of mind.

Emerson demonstrated to a woman who wanted to prosper by taking her down to the ocean and saying, "Take a look," and she said, "Oh there's plenty of water, isn't there?" He said, "Look at wealth that way and you'll always have it."

Realize that wealth is like the tide forever flowing out and forever flowing back. A sales manager said to me that an associate of his sold a million-dollar idea for expansion to the organization. You can have an idea worth a fortune too.

Wealth is a thought image in your mind. Wealth is an idea in your mind. Wealth is a mental attitude.

This sales manager also told me that there were more millionaires now in the United States than at any time in the history of the country.

You can have an idea worth a fortune, yes you can. Moreover, you are here to release the imprisoned splendor within you and surround yourself with luxury, beauty and the riches of life.

It is necessary to have the right attitude towards money, wealth, food, clothing and all life's necessities. When you really make friends with wealth you will always have a surplus of it. It is normal and natural for you to desire a fuller, richer, happier and more wonderful life.

Look upon money as God's idea of maintaining the economic health of the nations of the world.

When money is circulating freely in your life, you're economically healthy, in the same manner as when your blood is circulating freely, you are free from congestion.

Begin now to see money in its true significance and role in life as a symbol of exchange; that's all it is. It has taken many forms down through the ages.

Money to you should mean freedom from want. It should mean beauty, luxury, abundance, a sense of security and refinement. You're entitled to it. Being poor is a disease, it is a mental attitude.

A young woman, a very good writer, who had had several articles accepted for publication said to me one time, "I don't write for money."

I said to her, "What's wrong with money? It's true you don't write for money, but the labor is worthy of its hire. What you write inspires, uplifts and encourages others. When you adopt the right attitude, financial compensation will automatically come to you, freely and copiously."

She actually disliked money. You know, once she referred to money as filthy lucre.

Going back, I suppose, in the early days, she probably heard her mother, or somebody say, “money is evil” or “the love of money is the root of all evil” and all these things without any understanding at all. It’s a rank superstition to say money is evil or filthy lucre.

This woman had a subconscious pattern that there is some virtue in poverty. There isn’t. Poverty is a sickness, a disease.

I explained to her that there is no evil in the universe and that good and evil were in the thoughts and motivations of man.

All evil comes from misinterpretations of life and misuse of the laws of mind. In other words, the only evil is ignorance, and the only consequence is suffering.

It would be foolish to pronounce uranium, silver, lead, copper, iron, cobalt, nickel, calcium or a dollar bill as evil. How absurd, grotesque and stupid that is! The only difference between one metal and another is the number and rate of motions of electrons revolving around a central nucleus.

A piece of paper, such as a hundred-dollar bill, is innocuous and the only difference between it and copper and lead is that the atoms and molecules with their electrons and protons are arranged differently for the physical evidence of money.
